RC004052

This directory is dedicated to the migrant women of our nation who not only have the responsibilities of motherhood and family care but also travel annually with their families and share with them the onus of stoop labor. May destiny hold greater dignity for them and may they obtain the rights that every American woman should have, the opportunity to plan a family and the freedom to choose the method of planning.

COVER: The map on the cover is a photograph of a wall map designed by the staff of the Southwest Region of Planned Parenthood-World Population. It shows counties where one hundred or more migrants are in transit during the peak agricultural seasons. Pins indicate where family planning services are available to migrants, according to results of surveys made to obtain listings for this directory.

PREFACE

Another step toward assisting the migrants of our nation has been taken with this new edition of Family Planning Services Available to Migratory Farm Workers in the United States. The directory contains almost one-thousand listings of services in forty-six states. The purpose of the directory and the ultimate goal of the Migrant Project at the Southwest Region/Planned Parenthood-World Population is to assure continuity of family planning services for those migrants who desire to use them.

Use of the directory can be versatile, according to needs in different areas of the United States and to the types of referral programs now in use. Where referral systems are in effect, such as the one the Southwest Region installed in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas this past year, the directory can be used to select a service where or in the vicinity of where the migrant tells you she is going. Then the proper information can be entered on the referral form.

In a situation where there is no formal referral system, it is suggested that you write the necessary information on a card and give it to the migrant so that she might seek service at her destination. Often a patient may need more than one listing for referral if she is not certain about her destination. However, in a recent survey conducted by our office among migrant mothers in Texas, 81.6% of the respondents indicated that they do know their destination.

My gratitude goes first to the migrant women in the lower Rio Grande Valley who helped provide us with data important in the installation of a referral system. Next, my sincere thanks goes to the hundreds of personnel in Planned Parenthood Centers, Migrant Health Projects, County Health Departments, Hospitals and other health agencies who were so helpful in providing us with the listings contained in the directory.

The publication of the first directory, Family Planning Services Available to Migratory Farm Workers in the Mid-Continent Streams, January, 1969, the sustaining of the migrant project for the past year, and the publication of this revision have been supported entirely by one fine, sensitive lady, Mrs. Hattie Louise Browning, of Dallas, Texas. We will be indebted to her forever, not only for her generous contribution, but also for her heartfelt concern for migrant families.

Also, the combined efforts of Alan P. Bloebaum, who is due full credit for the original formulation of the migrant project, and Mrs. Julienne Meyers, who has given unselfishly of her time and encouragement, have been important in ensuring that the migrant project retain a high priority in the Southwest Region.

In addition, I express sincere appreciation to Mrs. James Shand, III, Mrs. Frederick E. Romberg, and Mrs. Morton L. Susman for their volunteer support and time which they contributed so graciously. Special consultant to the project was Mr. Robert Browning who is responsible for the transfer to Texas of the successful East Coast referral system. My immense thanks goes to him, and the staff of the Southwest Region office, who assisted so willingly. Lastly, to Bob Randall, my husband, critic, and friend, I am beholden for the support and confidence he has exercised.

It is our sincere hope that through the publication of this directory, you who work directly with migrant families will be more ably armed to help those who come to you for aid. May you be rewarded for your endeavors in assisting the migrants to gain new measures of self-respect and dignity as they exercise real choices in planning their families.

Sue Randall
Migrant Project Coordinator

FOREWORD

The ultimate goal of the Migrant Project of the Southwest Region, Planned Parenthood/World Population, is a program that assures continuity of family planning services to migratory farm workers as they travel about the United States.

The provisions of health services to any segment of America's medically dependent population has always been and still remains a problem of great proportion. However, the migratory farm workers of this country are not a typical segment of our population; they are, in fact, very atypical. They are a highly mobile population, remaining at home but a small part of each year, usually travelling thousands of miles to numerous places, often over a six to nine-months period. It is the provision of family planning services and the continuity of services to this highly mobile group that is of particular concern to the Southwest Region, Planned Parenthood/World Population.

Family planning, as a specific health service, is not a typical health service, such as immunization, for example. Good family planning depends upon continuous service. Drugs and supplies must be secured regularly, periodic medical check-ups need to be made, examinations, medical consultation and advice are continually recurring events. This need for continuous service, combined with the highly mobile status of the migratory farm worker, creates an even greater problem. Only the prompt and proper referral of a migratory farm worker from one family planning service center to another will help to assure continuity of service.

An effective referral system is essential to a good program of continuity. A successful referral form is being used by most of the service centers in the East Coast States. In addition, most South Texas Planned Parenthood Centers are using this identical referral form. It is hoped that every family planning service center will find this referral form a satisfactory one and will use it in making their referrals.

Successful referrals and continuity of services will depend almost entirely upon the professionals who make the referrals and upon those who receive them. The migratory farm workers may have difficulty contacting you; it is our hope that you will make every effort to contact them.

The Southwest Region, Planned Parenthood-World Population, is now developing a program to study, improve, maintain and monitor this present program of referral and continuity throughout the United States. When that has been accomplished, and when it is operational and completely effective, a personal goal of this Planned Parenthood Regional Director will have been fulfilled. But, more important, it will have accomplished something wanted, something needed and something very essential to a forgotten but very necessary segment of our country's population — the migratory farm workers.
